LIGHTNING SPLITS THE SKY above Carmel Valley during a highly unusual -- and noisy -- thunderstorm Tuesday night. Although the celestial fireworks were spectacular, the parched Carmel Valley did not receive a single drop of rain. Electricity was off in the upper Valley from 7:25 to 7:50 p.m. Tuesday, but that had nothing to do with the storm. The power failure was caused when a car rammed a PG&E pole on Highway 68.

To hear appeal by 63 residents Tuesday:

Val Verde controversy dropped in laps of supervisors

The continuing controversy over a proposed 45-unit development on Val Verde Drive at Carmel Valley Road will come before the Board of Supervisors once again on Tuesday at 11 a.m.

At issue is an appeal, signed by 63 residents of the immediate area, asking the supervisors to hold up the use permit granted developer Thomas Gamboa by the Planning Commission until problems of traffic congestion at the mouth of the Valley are resolved.

Specifically, the Valley residents hope the supervisors will add a condition to the use permit requiring Gamboa to provide additional access to his development, either to Rio Road or to the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center.

This condition was requested by the County Road Department when the use permit application was considered by the Planning Commission. The Planning Commission first approved it as stated, then rescinded it after attorney George Walker, representing Gamboa, protested that it was too severe and unfair to the developer.

Although everything about the development has provoked public protest—from the initial approval of rezoning from a one-unit to six-unit per acre density to the appearance of the duplex-type homes—concern is now centered on traffic problems.

Val Verde Drive enters Carmel Valley Road on a divided stretch of freeway. From Val Verde all cars must turn right, or east, into two lanes of traffic moving 45 to 55 miles per hour.

If the Val Verde motorist wants to go to Carmel, Monterey, or even the next-door Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, he must then move quickly into a left hand lane and make a U-turn at Rio Vista Drive into fast west-bound traffic.

Residents of Carmel Knolls and Rancho Rio Vista, who have long complained of the difficult and dangerous intersections, are now concerned that the additional cars coming from the "Casas de Carmel" development will trigger accidents as they negotiate the U-turn pattern.

Carmel school officials have also registered concern because students going to and from Carmel Middle School already have trouble getting across Carmel Valley Road.

Gamboa's position has been that it is unfair to require him to pay the cost of improving Val Verde Drive south and connecting it to Rio Road when he has major frontage on Carmel Valley Road.

At the Planning Commission hearing, Road Commissioner Bruce McClain suggested that the County might exercise its right of condemnation to acquire the land needed to improve Val Verde Drive, if the developer would then pay for his share of the construction costs.

As another alternative, McClain said that if Gamboa purchases the Kandlebinder estate across from his property on Val Verde, as he has said he might, an access road could be cut through there to Carmel Rancho Blvd.

Gamboa replied that he does not know whether or not he will acquire the property, and that it would be unfair to attach a condition for access that involves land he doesn't own.

The following is the text of the appeal which the supervisors will consider on Tuesday:

"...Residents of areas in the neighborhood of the proposed Casas de Carmel development are aggrieved by, and hereby appeal to the Board of Supervisors from, the action of the County Planning Commission on July 14, 1971, in granting a use permit to Casas de Carmel without imposing some kind of condition requiring the owner, or his successors, to develop primary access to the Casas via some route other than Carmel Valley Road.

"Residents of the area who are intimately familiar with traffic conditions in the vicinity have explained to the Planning Commission at three public hearings that a dangerous U-turn pattern of access to the proposed development results from the existence of a highway divider which lies in Carmel Valley Road opposite the opening to Val Verde Drive. Maintenance of the divider is necessary from one aspect of public safety, but the County Road Department agrees that it creates dangerous U-turn conditions at the at the Rio Vista and Carmel Knolls intersections. At present, only six families live along Val Verde, but the proposed 45-unit Casas development will generate automobile traffic in excess of 400 average daily trips, not to mention the traffic that will result from other similar developments to be anticipated along Val Verde in the future.

"As you are aware, the County Road Department and the Planning staff proposed a condition No. 13 to the use permit requiring the applicant to develop some primary access via Carmel Rancho Boulevard or the proposed extension of Rio Road. This was recommended by them as a possible solution to the safety problem. The Planning Commission at first granted the use permit, including condition No. 13, and then hurriedly reversed itself and rejected condition No. 13. Over the objection of the County Road Department, the Commission then granted the use permit without placing on it any conditions relating to development of alternative access.

"Under all the circumstances, we believe that the Planning Commission's failure to impose any kind of condition that ultimately will channel traffic from this development away from Carmel Valley Road leaves a serious question of safety unresolved, sets an undesirable precedent for the Val Verde area and constitutes an error and abuse of discretion.

"It disregards not only the rights of persons who will be living in the development, but also the rights of persons residing in the neighborhood who must use the affected intersection at Rio Vista Drive and Carmel Knolls Drive and who are entitled to protection under the specific language of Section 32(c) of the County Zoning Ordinance which provides that "In order to grant any Use Permit, the findings of the appropriate authority shall be that the establishment, maintenance or operation of the use or building will not under the circumstances of the particular case be detrimental to health, safety, peace, morals, comfort and general welfare of persons residing or working in the neighborhood of such proposed use." (emphasis added) The ordinance goes on to state that the County may designate such conditions in connection with the use permit "as it deems necessary to the purposes of this Ordinance...(and) may also require such bond and guarantees as it deems appropriate to assure the compliance of the conditions."

"Under the facts of this case, there appears to be no support for the Commission's finding that no safety problem is involved in the proposed operation of the Casas development, and we believe that the Planning Commission erred and abused its discretion in eliminating condition No. 13 and in failing to give the question of alternative access the careful and unhurried attention that it deserves. The whole matter should be placed in the hands of the Board of Supervisors for further study. We believe that a suitable condition can be worked out if the Supervisors, the County Road Department, and the Planning Department will combine their efforts to that end.

"We would like to point out that the fact that an alternative access may not be possible of accomplishment immediately is no excuse for failing to impose a condition on the use permit. After all, the Casas developer can be required to make sewer connections before occupancy is permitted, and that obviously cannot be done until completion of improvements to the sewage plant and cancellation of the present moratorium on new connections—events over which the developer has no control.

"Similarly, a condition requiring him to develop an alternative access as soon as possible, and limiting his access to Carmel Valley Road, should not be an undue burden upon him. Public safety is involved, and imposing such a condition would give the people of the area a means of forcing the developer, or his successors, to take some action along those lines. Without such a condition, he will always assert a right of unlimited access to Carmel Valley Road.

"Further, other potential developers along Val Verde will claim it also, because of the precedent set by this decision. Thus the people of the area will be permanently saddled with a serious safety problem. Under the Zoning Ordinance referred to above, the County has broad power, in granting use permits, to limit private property rights where the public safety is involved, and we hope the Board of Supervisors will see fit to exercise that power."

TO THE EDITOR

(Editor's Note: The following letter was submitted to the Outlook for publication by Mrs. Bob Wilson of Rancho Chupinos in Carmel Valley. It was also sent to supervisors Loren Smith and Willard Branson, Congressman Burt Talcott, Assemblyman Bob Wood and David H. Fiscus, manager of the California-American Water Co. in Monterey. Since it relates to a very important matter affecting the entire Carmel Valley, it is reprinted in full.)

Reconsidering the location of a dam in Carmel Valley, after the citizens involved have spent an emotional year, with lots of their time, their energy, and all the money they can afford on lawyers, is a dirty trick. People wear down. To try to rouse the public again and go through all the petition bit is impossible! Obtaining government funds for a multi-purpose dam is not a new consideration. This was all brought up in the previous battle.

The new San Clemente dam would make the two existing dams look like puddles.These two puddles since their construction have eliminated 75 percent of the flood danger to the Valley. Normal procedure for the Water Company is to keep a lower level in the dams during the storm season. We always figure three days of constant rain and the present dams are full and a flood is likely. Since we rarely have three days of constant rain, there hasn't been the yearly flood danger that there was before the dams were built. The larger new dam would lessen the chances further.

Those who build on the river should do so at their own risk.

The Klondike site would flood the only productive areas involved and put the Russell Ranch and our ranch out of business. We are as small as you can get to make a living in the cattle business. This would flood all our fertile grain land and bisect the heart of the grazing land with the relocated highway. The only value left to our ranch would be to plant houses, and I understand the people of Carmel Valley don't like that idea.

The hillside which the Klondike site would tie into on the south side is traversed by two faults and is badly fractured, as evidenced by the fact that a lake built on the old Hank Ketchem place (a half a mile above the gorge) leaked through these fissures coming out on the face of the cliff at the Klondike site. The water level behind this dam would be higher than 90 percent of the homes in the Valley and only a mile away.

Valley residents are definitely not interested in a recreational attraction in their Valley.

1. The San Clemente site is the safest site.
2. It is primarily on water company land.
3. No homes would have to be relocated.
4. No highways would have to be moved with the resultant scars.
5. The land proposed to be flooded is not suitable for the production of food or fiber.

Let the water company build the dam on its own property and save the federal funds for more important things.

Sincerely yours,
MRS. BOB WILSON

BOB WOOD REPORTS. . .

A REGULAR COLUMN BY BOB WOOD,
ASSEMBLYMAN - 34TH DISTRICT

The Legislature voted for a three week recess, some of us voted for a two week recess instead of three but we were out voted. I voted for a two week recess, because there are so many major problems still unsolved. There is going to have to be some new money for education, we still have to determine the amount. Property tax reform, an issue that last year lost out by one vote, still hasn't been resolved and this is a big one and will take time.Another problem, what affect is President Nixon's decree on wage freeze going to do to the State employees.

We were getting mighty close to a compromise increase these last few weeks. Reapportionment of Assembly and Senate districts, this big one will take many days to thrash out. When you combine these major problems with the fact that the minor ones still aren't completed, you can see we face a long session. I think the sooner we tackle them the better. I wouldn't be a bit surprised to see us still here in October. California's budget is the sixth largest in the world. I feel we had better not be too hasty in determining how it should be spent. I think we should go slow and try to make each decision in the interests of better government.

You are going to hear a lot about No-Fault insurance in the weeks ahead. Under the bill recently passed by the Assembly, claims by driver and the passengers in his car would be paid by his insurance company regardless of who's at fault if there's an accident. Primary opposition to the bill comes from California Trial Lawyers' Association. Arguments have been advanced that many car owners would end up paying more for their insurance than they pay now if they want protection against losses above the arbitrary limit set in the various No-Fault plans.

Those pushing for the passage of a No-Fault insurance package claim the present system is inadequate and slow. They point to the thousands who are paid too little and some paid too much and the fact that 25 percent of all automobile accident victims now fail to recover anything, because so many times the guilty party has no insurance. Most insurance companies are divided on the concept.

Enuf for now . . . BOB WOOD

P.S. Just because we are on recess it does not stop the mail from coming into the office and I still find myself spending a good portion of the week in Sacramento and doubt if I will be back in the District for any length of stay until late in October.

Fire protection for mid-Valley advances

LAFCO approves boundaries - not all property owners satisfied

BY PAT GRIFFITH

County Service Area 59, to provide fire protection for mid-Carmel Valley from the San Carlos Ranch road on the west to the boundary with the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District on the east, was given the green light by the Local Agency Formation Commission Tuesday night.

LAFCO approved boundaries for the new service area as shown on the map in last week's Outlook with one exception - the 140-acre Knight ranch was deleted.

Final approval will not be given until the next LAFCO meeting on Sept. 28, when a map showing final metes and bounds has been prepared.

Arthur Moore, assistant executive officer of LAFCO, said the new service area encompasses approximately four square miles, with a population of 2700. It has an assessed value of approximately $11,060,000.

Approval of the boundaries came after extensive debate about whether or not several large parcels of undeveloped land should be included.

Moore argued the case for an all-inclusive district, noting that "in a heterogeneous rural setting, any land use could be a potential fire source" because all lands are used or crossed by people.

He said that only very steep and uninhabited areas along the northern and southern perimeters were being excluded from the district because they would be inaccessable to fire equipment.

Bill Brown, co-chairman of the Ad Hoc committee of mid-Valley residents asking for a service area, also pressed for a broad area.

NEED ALL PROPERTY

"We need every single piece of property in the proposed area because of the assessed valuation," he told the commission. "If we lose any, we will be in a critical situation . . ."

This drew vigorous opposition from several landowners, most of whom had been left off an earlier map of the proposed service area.

Milt Frumkin, owner of Saddle Mountain Ranch, tried unsuccessfully to get his 100-acre hillside property deleted from the service area.

"I wouldn't mind one bit if we could be taxed on our additional improvements only," Frumkin said. "This would be a fair thing."

Frumkin said that taxing his entire property would be too great a burden to bear.

"I speak not only for myself, but for many others . . . who have no other assets than the land we have. If this keeps going on, it will be more of a filtering process than anything else . . . only the very rich will be living in Carmel Valley."

A similar position was taken by Luis Wolter, who said he favored the fire district and would be willing to have his developed property in it, but did not want to have his agricultural land included.

Attorney John Muller represented Martha Cooper Lang of Rancho Don Juan. Muller said the Cooper family does not want to oppose formation of a fire district, but they "vigorously oppose . . . being tagged onto it."

The one successful plea for exclusion was made by Mrs. Alys Bliesner, who lives on the ranch owned by Mrs. Alan Knight. Mrs. Bliesner told the commission that most of the Knight property is inaccessable mountainside identical to the neighboring Del Monte Properties land which is not part of the proposed service area.

At a later point in the hearing, following up on Mrs. Bliesner's comments, Wolter charged up to a large map of the proposed service area and pointed out the Del Monte and Rancho San Carlos properties that were not included.

"Here you're hitting the few small ones (property owners) and not the big ones," Wolter said.

With a sweep of his arm he drew the pointer around the whole service area and argued: "If you're going to do this, let's get the whole barrel going . . . let's get everybody in, ridge to ridge."

HABER SPEAKS

At several points during the hearing, when it appeared that some members of the commission were sympathetic towards the landowners wanting out, Ed Haber, president of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, rose to warn that he would pull out his entire development unless everyone else stayed in.

Haber said that during his 10 years as a volunteer fireman in the Village he had answered two fires on the Cooper ranch.

"At least half the fires in our district last year were brush fires," Haber said. "The real hazard is along the road, and a recreation area is a far greater fire hazard than some places with lawns."

In a letter written to LAFCO, Haber argued against any change in the revised boundaries. "We feel that such piecemeal exclusions would result in an unfair tax burden for the resident property owners and the club itself," Haber wrote, adding that his property is "already serviced by approved sprinkler systems."

At the hearing, Haber repeated his earlier statements that he is supporting a service area reluctantly, and only with the assurance that an election will be held as early as possible to change it to a fire district.

In the meantime, Haber said, he would be willing to resign as a director of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District to help run the new service area, provided its boundaries were not changed.

Supervisor Arthur Atteridge of Salinas, a member of the commission, suggested the commission revise the boundaries only slightly, to include only the portions of the Cooper and Knight ranches near Carmel Valley Road.

He withdrew this idea when a spokesman from the county assessor's office said this would include most of the assessed value of the Cooper ranch anyway.

Another member of the commission, Supervisor Warren Church, said he felt the line should be drawn to include a portion of Del Monte Properties land next to the Knight ranch.

The final motion by Atteridge, however, was simply to delete the Knight ranch and leave everything else as is. It passed 3 to 2, with John Bean and Church in opposition.

Approval for Service Area 59 cleared the way for the commission's later action in recommending annexation of Descanso Oaks to County Service Area 43, which now provides fire protection to Hacienda Carmel and Del Mesa Carmel.

Planners OK 6 homes on 1½ acres in valley

The Monterey County Planning Commission yesterday granted a use permit for construction of six homes on a 1½ acre parcel at the foot of Carmel Knolls Drive at Carmel Valley Road.

The application was presented by Hall and Goodhue, which intends to have the triangular parcel split into six lots with an average of 9,350 square feet each.

The plot, which is now zoned ST, has been the subject of controversy in the past. At one time it was slated for a gas station, and at another time there was an attempt to locate a Foster's Freeze there.

Recalling the earlier applications, commissioner Keith Evans urged that "every consideration" be given the developer.

The use permit application had the support of the Carmel Planning Commission and the Lower Valley Advisory Committee. The Carmel Knolls Property Owners Association also approved the plan, although the group expressed concern that setback requirements might be reduced along Carmel Knolls Drive.

Appearing in opposition was Loretta Mouber of San Francisco, who owns a home in Carmel Knolls. She stated that when she purchased her home, she was assured that the deed restrictions on size of homesites extended all the way down Carmel Knolls to Carmel Valley Road.

"This will devalue the property in Carmel Knolls," she protested.

She was told that the planning commission has no control over sales promotional brochures,and that the ST zoning in effect permitted a density of 8 units.

On another zoning matter, the commission voted to rezone property owned by Arne Kippenes on Esquiline Road at Carmel Valley Road to C1DP.

12 APARTMENTS IN VILLAGE

Kippenes intends to ask for a use permit for 12 apartments on the property, which had been zoned in two segments -- partly commercial and partly R3. The commission has recently looked with favor at converting excess commercial land in the Village area to apartments, and Kippenes' application for rezoning was in line with that policy.

However commissioner Keith Evans expressed concern about encouraging higher density development.

"I view with alarm the apartment development of the upper Carmel Valley," Evans said. "I lean much more to the resort-hotel type of development . . . I just don't think this is an apartment area with so few stores, inadequate roads and all."

Commission chairman Edward P. Marcucci agreed, saying that "this apartment thing is getting a little out of hand . . . this has to be controlled too."

Planning Director Ed DeMars said the planning staff feels there is a need for a total approach to the zoning problems around the Village, and warned that piecemeal development could eventually bring many new problems.

The rezoning was approved 7 to 2, with Evans and Marcucci opposed.

On another Carmel Valley matter, the commission put off until Nov. 24 further consideration of rezoning certain property in upper Robles del Rio.

Robert Reed, president of the Robles del Rio Water Company, asked the commission to consider establishing a drainage district for the area and to consider problems of access and over-all development before changing any zoning lines to allow additional one-half-acre building sites.

The rezoning request came from property owners along El Hemmorro, whose properties are now bisected by a zoning line established in 1957. In several cases, this puts the lower portion of an individual piece of property in B3 (half acre) zoning and the upper portion in B4 (one acre) zoning.

The planning staff had suggested adjusting the zoning line to follow existing property lines. In some cases this would shift more land into half-acre zoning, while in other cases it would move half-acre land into a one-acre minimum area.

UNDER THE OAKS & AMONG THE CACTI

By Mildred Hattan

BEFORE AN ALTAR BANKED with red ginger and red and white anthurium, vows were exchanged in a setting rich with the beauty and the fragrance of the Islands . . . where they met and where they will establish their first home . . . by Carlene Ann Foreman and Byron Harry Galloway.

The young couple flew from Hawaii where they are both employed to be married in Carlene's hometown of Welsh, Louisiana. The Rt. Rev. Jules O. Daigle performed the morning ceremony at Our Lady of Seven Dolores Catholic Church.

The bride, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert James Foreman, sr., of Welsh, was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of chiffon over white satin, trimmed with rows of lace from the bodice to hemline. Her veil of white tulle was floor length. She wore the groom's gift, a pendant watch, and carried a bridal bouquet of lavender and purple orchids. Aqua, yellow and pink satin were the gowns of the bridal attendants with lace overskirts and white tulle veils. Their bouquets were of pink and red anthurium and vanda orchids.

Orchids and birds of paradise, flown from the islands as were the wedding flowers, decorated the reception held at the Heywood Room of the Zigler Hotel in Jennings, Louisiana. Mrs. Robert Reiner (formerly Georgia Galloway, sister of the bridegroom) from Mill Valley served the wedding cake.

Following a honeymoon in Las Vegas and Disneyland, the couple will make their home in Honolulu.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Florence Kari Galloway, Carmel Valley and Harry Galloway, Phoenix, Arizona. He obtained his B.A. in History at the University of Washington where he was affiliated with Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity; his B.A. from the University of Nevada; and an M.A. from the University of Hawaii in Social Work. Following his tour of duty with the Army he was employed by Macy's in Monterey. Formerly with the Hawaii State Prison as a psychiatric social worker, he is present with the Hawaii State Hospital in Kaneohe, Hawaii. Carlene received her B.A. degree in elementary education and M.A. in Administration and Supervision from McNeese State University in Lake Charles, Louisiana. She will continue with her teaching position in Weianae, Hawaii.

Among the wedding guests were his mother, Mrs Florence Galloway, of Carmel Valley, his sister, Mrs. Robert Reiner, of Mill Valley and his grandfather, Carl Holm of Morro Bay. The group rendezvoused with Florence's cousin, Mrs. Gertrude Peak of Aberdeen, Wash. -- and visited with friends from Dallas, New Orleans and Little Rock, Ark., for a week.

The newlyweds spent five days in Carmel Valley enroute to the Islands and were hosted at a small reception at the Robles Del Rio home of the groom's mother who was assisted with party plans by Mrs. Leo Diner.

xxx

AMONG THE HONEYMOON COUPLES who had Carmel Valley on their itinerary were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brose whose wedding took place in Staten Island. Mrs. Brose is the former June Kohls, the niece of Carrie Papineau. The couple who are on a motor trip of the U.S. and Canada were guests at the Adobe Oaks of the Frank Papineaus who gave them a tour of the area including Point Lobos and Carmel.

xxx

SPECIAL GUESTS last week on Buena Vista Del Rio at the James Goold home were Tracy's parents, Mr. and Mrs.Roy Jones of Cape Cod, Mass., who accompanied Tracy's aunt and uncle Mr. and Mrs. Skip Massey of Weymouth, Mass., across country in their Balboa recreational van. The Jones renewed their acquaintance with their four-year-old granddaughter, Cheryl and met for the first time their new "chosen" grandson, Bobby who is also four . . . the highlight of course for proud grandparents of their three week tour.

NEWLYWEDS MR. AND MRS. BYRON GALLOWAY and his mother, Mrs. Florence Galloway.

THE ED McCURRY FAMILY left last week for Charlotte, Michigan, where Mr. McCurry has been accepted as a principal of a K-5 school and will also direct a guidance program for high school drop-outs. The McCurrys are long time Peninsula residents (he was a principal in both the Monterey and Carmel Districts . . . directed a school at Big Sur and at Rippling River). Mrs. McCurry is famous for her numerous creative ventures -- puppets, dolls, coloring books, etc., which presently have 22 retail outlets. The McCurry children, Karen, Mark and Tom are looking forward to getting acquainted with grandparents who live nearby and their parents to renewing friendships from early days and when they were college students at East Lansing. Most recently their home has been in the Dick Gayman residence on Paso Hondo.

"HEAD 'EM UP, MOVE 'EM OUT" was the cry heard by riders on the early morning breakfast ride from Hidden Hills for members of the Carmel Valley Trail and Saddle Club. Breakfast "chuck wagon" crew who had good things prepared for the hungry riders included club president, Bob Trenner, Linda Raynes, Mrs. Sally Browning, Brenda and Tammy Clough and Timilea Dougherty. A damper on the day was due to the injuries received by Dr. Harry Raynes whose horse ran into a hornet's nest . . . backed off a cliff and fell on his rider. Dr. Raynes was transported to the Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital by ambulance where is is resting "uncomfortably" with broken ribs and a back injury.

Others making the ride were Mrs. Raynes, Mrs. Marie Browning, Mr. and Mrs.Stewart Clough, Margaret Covell, Marcia Dahle, Mrs. Dick Nuckton and Brenda, Mrs. Glynn Prine, Dr. and Mrs. H.T. Stotler, Mrs. Bob Trenner and John, Paul Dahle, Tim Dougherty and Ed Hubbert.

The next ride planned by the organization will be for members and guests to originate in Toro Park.

"FOND MEMORIES OF THE ORIENT" was the charming theme for the Chapel Guild sponsored bridge and canasta party for the month of August. Oriental fans, lanterns, and multi-colored bamboo umbrellas gave Fellowship Hall an Oriental Tea Room flavor. Gold and silver place mats, napkins and tallies were an effective background for homemade cookies -- almond, ginger, and macaroon -- made by Jean Stekly . . . chocolate puffs (by Irma Bolgard who submitted the recipe in the Valley Fare Cook Book) . . . fortune cookies and mandarin orange jello by Helen Fitch.

Homemade plum jelly by Jean Stekly gift-wrapped and topped with miniature parasols by Helen Fitch were presented to the following table prize winners: Vera Stokes, Tillie McDonald, Hazel Carp, Martha Sturgis, Sarah Oppenheimer, Dorothy Wageman, Dorothy Chappell, Natalie Raymond, Dorie Ford, Billie Mans, Adel Reynolds and Gene Fairchild. The first prize in bridge went to Mary Young -- the second to Dorothy Ganzenbach. Millie Krejcir took the first place award in canasta and Jennie Biggins, second.

Guests welcomed to the group were Lydia Wright, Dolly Huff, Esther Ely, Louise Doerr, Christine Styckel, Lenora Davidson and Mabel Parks. Hostesses for the prettily arranged affair were Helen Fitch, Jean Stekley, Tillie McDonald, Alice Wright, Gennie Adair, Alice Wright, Esther Ely and Millie Krejcir.

The September party is scheduled for the 15th at 12:30 at the Fellowship Hall with Vera Stokes and Mary Walls serving as co-hostesses. Volunteer assistants are needed -- you may offer your help when you phone Helen Fitch, 373-7781, Jean Stekly, 659-4037, or Vera Stokes, 659-4286 to make your reservations.

Caught up in the excitement of the plans for the party with its Oriental theme was Mrs. Mabelle E. Martin, a former Valley-ite who is now a resident-guest at the Carmel Convalescent Hospital. Mrs. Martin was inspired to write this lovely poem:

MY CHINESE RUG

Oh, I love to sit on my Chinese rug and dream of the wonders there.
There's tiny gabled tea houses and a strange two handled chair.
Such lovely flowers of blue and gold are scattered every where;
Tho' I've searched I can not find one, they seem quite rare.
There's a big dragon lurking there and here a wondrous crown.

"No, child, " my father then replied, while scanning the paper through.
"They only grow on Chinese rugs for dreamers, dear, like you."
Oh, I hope some day to sail away to the land of the bright sunrise.
For it may be true, twixt me and you, that's the way they advertise.
I'll look for small tea houses there and find out if its all humbug.
Then look for the flowers that seem to grow only on my Chinese rug.

All horses in Valley can now be given mandatory vaccination

Horse owners in this area were informed today that vaccine for the often-fatal disease Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis (VEE) is now available through local veterinary practitioners.

Dr. John B. Parr of Salinas from the California Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Animal Health, is in charge of distributing the vaccine to local veterinarians, who will perform the required vaccinations without charge to the horse owners.

Vaccination of all horses, mules, burros and other equines in California against VEE is now mandatory, Dr. Parr said. After vaccination, horses must remain on the premises for 14 days. Otherwise, there is no restriction on the movement of horses within the state.

Dr. Parr urged horse owners to contact their veterinarians as soon as possible to schedule the vaccinations.

Horses should be haltered and tied up at the scheduled time to aid in speeding up the mass vaccination program, he said.

Large office building planned at Carmel Rancho

Plans and a model for a professional building to be constructed adjacent to Carmel Rancho Shopping Center were presented to the Carmel Planning Commission last week.

The commission recommended to the county planning commission that a use permit be granted to W.K. Stewart, the applicant, and that a variance in the 30-foot front setback be allowed.

The building, to be constructed on the east side of CarmelRancho Boulevard, except for one remaining small building site stretches from present development nearly to Rio Road.

The building will be constructed on three acres, six building sites.

In its letter to the county planners, the commission recommended that the building be broken up into two or more structures.

Planning Director John Riling said that the county planners would probably send the plan back to the commission for a design review recommendation before any final approval on the structure.

Carmel architect Sebastian Bordonaro designed the building.

It is about 512 feet long, two-story with one three-story section.

It "looks like a factory," Commissioner Dorothea Roberts said, also saying, "I object to that much roof, anywhere."

Special financial problems at high school

The financial future of the "atypical" Carmel Unified School District was painted rather bleakly by Superintendent Harris Taylor at Wednesday night's board of education meeting.

It has already been estimated that the district would lose in excess of $1 million annually if a proposed statewide tax is passed.

Taylor said last night that a bill -- ACA 37 -- is pending in the state senate which, if it gets on the ballot and is passed by the electorate, would eliminate the $120 basic aid allotment for every student in the state public school system.

The elimination of the allotment, Taylor said, would result in a district annual loss of $370,000, about 35 cents on the tax rate.

The superintendent gave a full long-range analysis of the district's past, current and future financial situation in deference to the board's two new members - Pamela Smith and Dr. Charles Snorf.

He said the analysis would be a "rather short introduction to a rather big topic."

Doffing his suitcoat, Taylor illustrated his analysis at a blackboard, jotting down figures and percentages.

He explained that all districts can administer a $1.65 tax per assessed $100 valuation without voter permission. The district's present $2.52 tax rate consists of the $1.65 plus overrides of 50 cents and one of 37 cents, approved in 1966 by voters for a five-year period to renovate district schools which were in poor shape in 1966.

OVERRIDES

The overrides expire this fiscal year, Taylor said, which will require another tax election before next June 30.

In addition to the $2.52 tax, another 20 cents is added to the rate as mandated by the state to finance employee retirement funds, health insurance and other programs directed by the state.

Business Manager Walter Hinton said that out of about 24 permissive override taxes allowed by the state, the district partakes in six.

Taylor said that although the state is committed to sharing education costs 50-50 with districts, it now finances only 35 to 37 percent of the costs. "That gives you an idea of the trend -- what the state is doing," he said.

While the district anticipated annual assessed valuation increases of 5.5 percent, Taylor said the yearly increases have actually been 8.8 percent. To offset the yearly 3.3 percent bonus, the district has reduced tax levies by 4.36 percent, he said.

During the same period, the district estimated inflation would be two percent annually, but that figure ended up at about six percent per year. During this period enrollment increased 7.7 percent over all.

In the first year of the five-year period, he said, the tax rate, including state-directed overrides, was $2.71, the following year it climbed to $2.90 but over the past three years the district has "maintained a constant tax rate" of $2.72.

"All through this," he said, the district was able to save perhaps $135,000 by setting aside money and then paying cash for a new bus garage which would have cost twice as much -- $270,000 -- if financed through bonds.

Taylor said that while he says the district has saved money people can say but the "cost per pupil is higher than in the typical district in the state of California."

RATIOS

Comparing district administrator-teacher and pupil-teacher ratios with state figures, he said that while the average district in the state has 7.2 administrators per 100 teachers, Carmel has 7.5 administrators per 100 teachers and when "one considers how widely scattered" district schools are "we're not much out of line."

Average state pupil-teacher figures for ninth through 12th grade are 27.6 students per teacher, for elementary 28.3 students per teacher; respective Carmel figures are 27.1 and 24.7 students per teacher.

If the district raised its elementary pupil-teacher ratio to the state average -- "which I think is ridiculous" -- the district would save about $150,000, the difference in cost between a 28.3 and a 24.7 per teacher ratio, Taylor said.

Citing some reasons why the district is "atypical" when compared to the typical California school district, Taylor said that yearly transportation costs of the average district of 3,000 students is $60,000. The Pacific Grove Unified School District, which has an enrollment close to 3,000 and has an area of six square miles, has figured transportation costs for next year at $46,600. Carmel's transprtation costs for this coming year will be $160,631.

If the district was of a "typical size," Taylor said it would save at least $100,000.

As to teachers salaries, Taylor said 60 percent of the staff has been with the district 10 years or more "and that is not typical -- it's another thing that makes us atypical as a school district."

If the district was average as far as length of individual teacher employment, the teachers would not be as high up the salary schedule and the district would save $200,000 annually, Taylor said.

LIBRARIES

He said typical districts do not have elementary libraries, but Carmel does, at a cost of $50,000.

Instructional supplies are more comprehensive per student, resulting in an annual expense of $30,000 to $40,000 more than the average district, he said.

Of ACA37, Taylor said the district has asked Sen Donald R. Grunsky, R-Watsonville, not to support the bill "in that it would do extreme damage to us, in our position."

In addition to ACA37 and the proposed statewide tax that is "hanging over us," Taylor said that the tax reform package, if big cuts are made in education, "could wipe us out."

"So there is no easy, predictable way to deal with the total financial situation."

With high transportation costs, high teacher salaries, the cost of keeping the elementary student-teacher ratio from climbing to the state level, plus other expensive items coming with the "atypical" district, Taylor said, "I think one could analyze it and come up with all the money that makes the difference" in the Carmel cost per student and the cost per average state district.

In addition, he said, the state is thinking of having the district pay more into teacher retirement which, over the next few years, could add five to six cents to the tax rate.

Also, he said, while other districts can receive state or federal grants, "We've applied four times on good projects and been denied." Although it applied, Carmel was the only district not to receive part of an $838,000 federal grant to the county for jobs for the unemployed.

"Chances of getting that money (any sizable federal or state grants) are very slight," he said.

This, he said, although the number of aid-to-dependent children in the district has doubled in the last year.

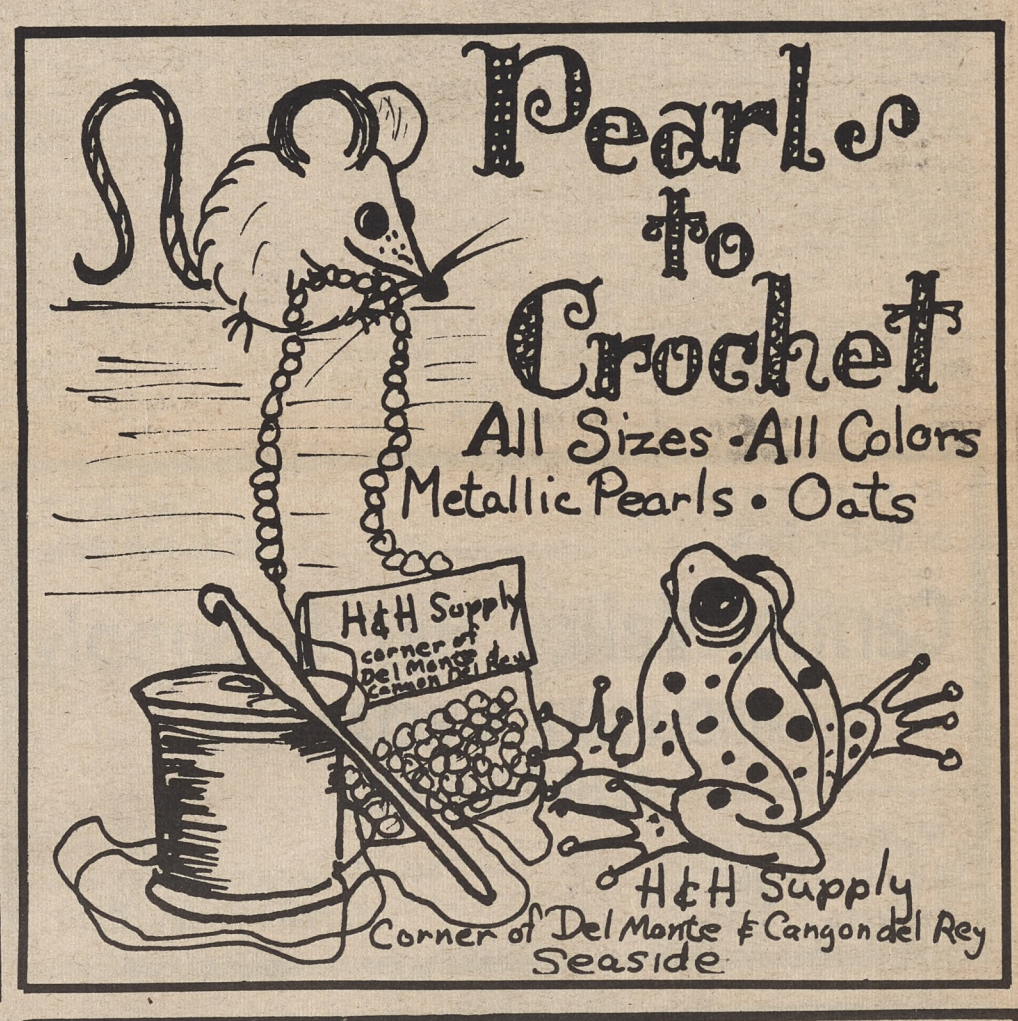

Of the renovation of district schools under the override, Taylor said 95 percent of the work has been completed and the remaining five percent will be finished by June. "A committment was made (with the people) and executed," he said, adding that he couldn't visualize what the high school looked like five years ago, indicating that it was in sad need of repair.

Music at Baptist Church Sunday

Lyle Richardson, renowned concert baritone from the San Francisco Bay area, will sing a program of classics and sacred music Sunday at 6 p.m. in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church of Carmel.

The works of Purcell, Mendelssohn, Ives, Richardson's own compositions and selections from the gospel repertoire will be featured.

Richardson is a graduate of the Philadelphia Academy of Music, Academy of the Vocal Arts, and the masters' program of the College of Holy Names in Oakland. He made his concert debut in Philadelphia at the age of 22, and made several concert tours of the U.S. and Europe, before taking his present post as Minister of Music at the First Presbyterian Church of San Mateo in 1970.

The public is cordially invited to this free musical presentation at the church, located at the corner of Carmel Valley Road and Schulte Road.

Unusual course may be offered by Adult School

Carmel Adult School will probably offer a course this fall called Preparation for Parenthood -- but before approving it, the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education decided Wednesday night to table authorization until more information is obtained on the course.

Superintendent Harris Taylor told the board -- to hearty laughter -- what he knew of the course:

"I don't know what to say about it -- it's a little out of my field." He did add: "I think it's sort of a natural childbirth class."

The course, which would include instruction on breast-feeding and natural childbirth, would be taught by Barbara Largent, who has been a teacher aide for the district the past few years.

President James Brock said he has known Mrs. Largent for some time and "I think she is an excellent teacher."

Taylor said that Mrs. Largent has taken training courses from the Childbirth Education League of the Monterey Peninsula.

Charles Dawson, principal of the adult school, has requested approval of the course and Taylor said some Carmel area people probably have expressed an interest in the course.

Trustee Charles Snorf, because of the importance of the course, moved that action be tabled pending more information.

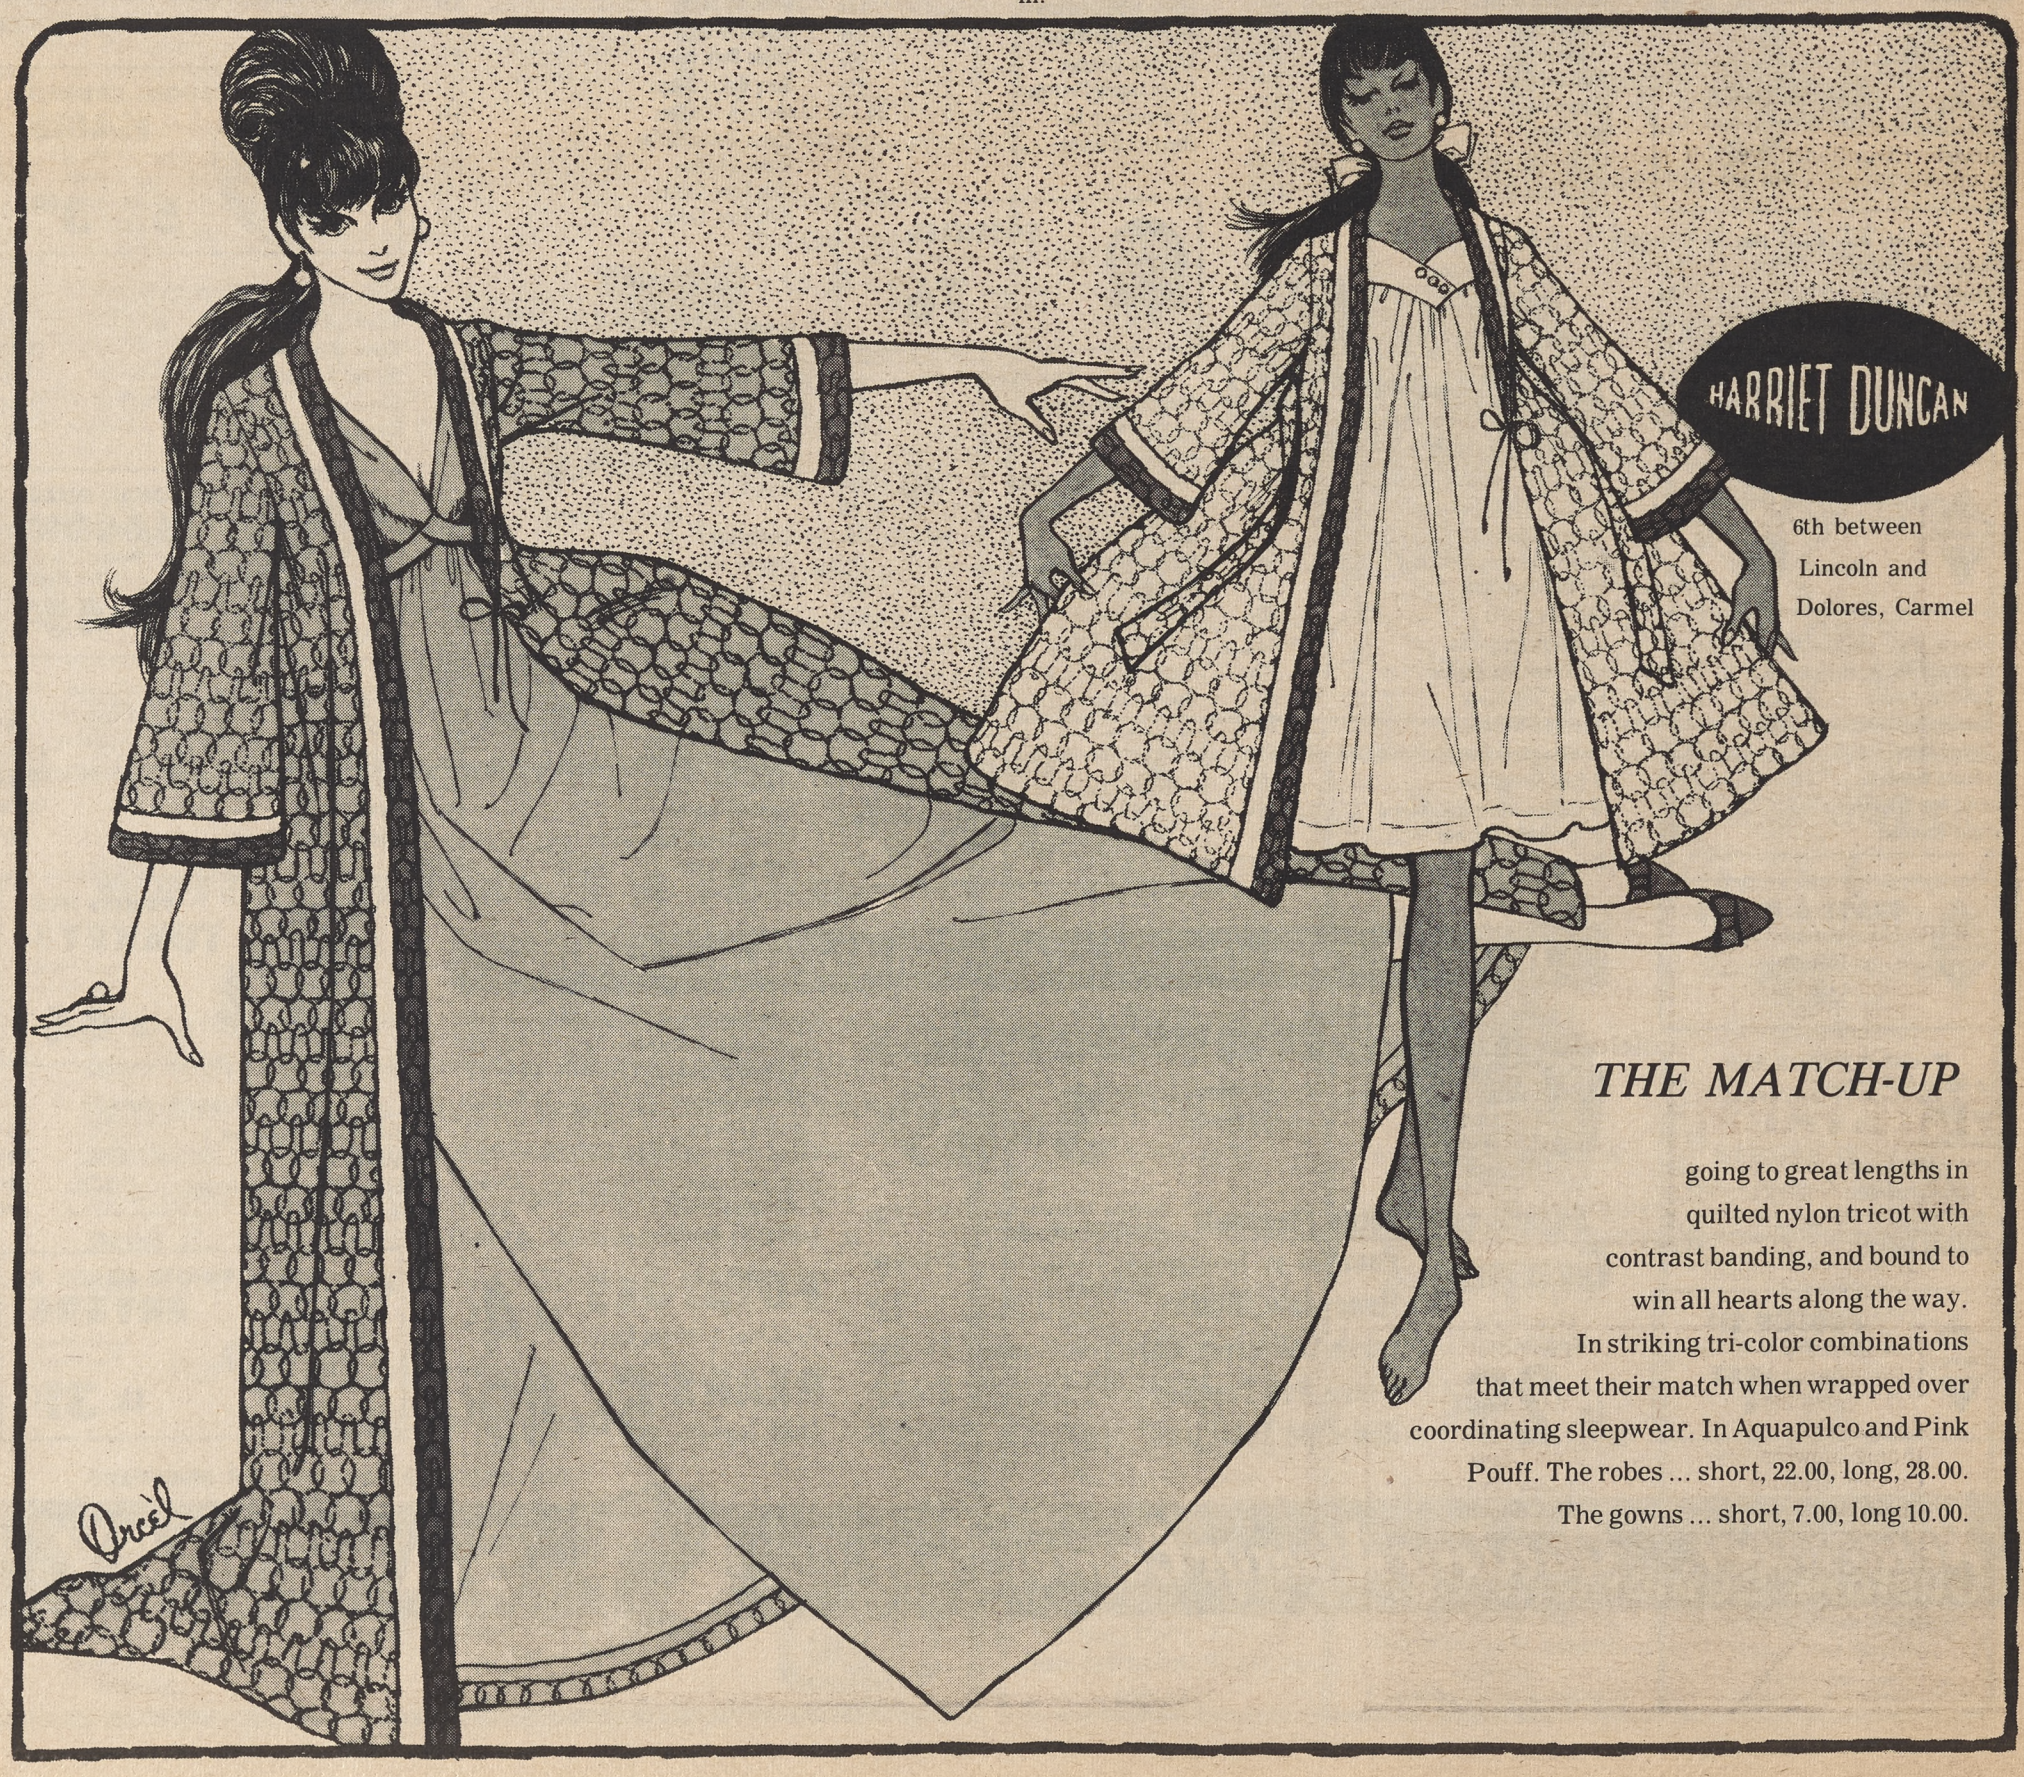

In other board business, the administration was authorized to advertise for bids to thin eucalyptus trees at the Bay School nursery site. The trees have reportedly become hazardous. The work will cost in excess of $4,000.

The resignation of Susan Voris, social studies teacher at Carmel Middle School, was accepted.

The employment was approved of Ruth Hatch as a one year only replacement for a teacher on a leave of absence. Miss Hatch will teach language arts at Middle School.

State Environmental Council to hold hearing in Carmel Sept. 30 on Odello plans

The State Environmental Quality Study Council has scheduled a regular monthly meeting in Carmel on Thursday, Sept. 30, to hear testimony on the proposed development of the Odello Ranch at the mouth of the Carmel River, the Council's chairman, David L. Baker announced Wednesday.

Testimony will be heard to consider what environmental problems, if any are associated with the project, Baker said. The meeting will also "focus on the methods of and problems involved with preserving open space," he said.

The Council, consisting of 17 members appointed by the governor and the legislature, was created in 1968 to make an in-depth study of the State's environmental quality problems and to recommend, after holding public hearings, such leislative and administrative actions as may be necessary to effectively protect, manage, and improve environmental quality.

Since first convening in April, 1969, the Council has held 18 public hearings throughout the State on such subjects as air pollution, land use, coastline management, preservation of open space, youth and the environment, noise abatement, and nuclear power. The council submitted its first progress report to the Governor and the Legislature in February, 1970, and a second progress report inFebruary, 1971.

The morning session will be devoted to regular agenda items. In the afternoon, the Council will discuss with interested citizens and public officials the environ mental implications of development at the mouth of the Carmel River. Both sessions are open to the public. Further details will be available in the near future.

VALLEY POOL TO CLOSE FOR WEEKEND

The Carmel Valley Community Pool will close at 3 p.m. Saturday and remain closed all day Sunday due to the competitive synchronized swimming meet sponsored by the Cypress Swim Team.

The normal summer schedule will resume on Monday, with the pool open from 1 to 4 p.m. daily, and on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. This will continue until Sept. 12.

The Carmel High School pool will be open as usual this weekend, and will also be in operation through Sept. 12. It is also open to the public for swimming on Monday and Wednesday evenings.

Open burning still banned in Carmel Valley area

Fire Chief Chip Collins yesterday issued a reminder to Carmel Valley residents that all open burning is banned until rains start late in the fall. Anyone using an incinerator or barbecue within the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District must first obtain a permit from the fire department in the Village, and must observe regulations on hours for use.

Collins' announcement was prompted by two calls received by the department last week which involved illegal burning. The first call, on Paso Hondo early Saturday evening, involved an incinerator that was being used after legal burning hours.

The second call came Sunday evening for illegal open burning on property in Los Ranchitos.

EMERGENCY CALLS

The fire department also had several medical emergencies during the week.

Last Thursday at 1:29 p.m. Marian Wilson was taken from the White Oaks Inn to Community Hospital when she had difficulty breathing.

At 11:24 p.m. that night, Donna L. Ball of 500 Glenwood Circle, Monterey, was taken from the scene of a one-car accident west of the Laureles Grade Road on Carmel Valley Road to Community Hospital.

Mrs. Ball suffered major injuries when her car missed the curve by River Ranch, went off the road and overturned. The California Highway Patrol said she was driving an estimated 90 miles an hour.

On Friday at 10:08 p.m., Matthew Thystrup, 3, of Valle Vista Dr., was taken to a local doctor's office as a medical emergency.

A puncture wound in the right elbow brought Ted Sparkuhl to the fire station for treatment at 4:08 p.m. Saturday. Sparkuhl, of 101 Ford Road, was treated and told to see a physician.

On Monday at 3:41 p.m. the Red Cross ambulance also took E7 Elbert Foreman of Fort Ord to Community Hospital after he was injured in a motorcycle accident on Laureles Grade one mile south of the summit.

Petpourri

BY JUDITH EISNER

By definition, a domestic animal is a tame animal, one which is familiar to being handled by man and who lives as part of a human household, whether indoors or out.

No matter whether the animal is large or small—horse or kitten—the thing that sets him apart from a wild animal is his tractability and acceptance of man's whims. A horse that kicks and bites, a cow that cannot be milked or a cat that scratches without cause cannot be considered truly domesticated.

All domestic animals were originally wild. The fast-vanishing mustang, the wild cattle and bison, the coyote, the bobcat and other wild cats are all distant relatives of the domesticated horse, cow, dog and cat.

The process of domestication from original wild creature to willing and docile servant and companion of man was a long, slow process that occurred many thousands of years ago. At first, primitive man must have stolen wild dog pups from their den; later, he captured wild horses when he discovered their usefulness. Only in modern times has animal breeding come under man's dominion, where he intentionally produced offspring of his original wild stock.

Even though our everyday domestic animals have been living in close association with man, they still retain many of their instincts that began as survival traits in the wild.

Thus, the modern-day dog turns around three or four times before lying down—a throwback to long-gone days when he made his nest in leaves and grass and turned about to chase off snakes, scorpions and other undesirable bedfellows and to flatten down his bedding.

And the domestic horse still resorts to true wild horse tactics when he feels threatened. The horse in the wilds depended primarily on his alertness and ability to flee quickly from an enemy. So the modern horse tends to shy, ready to flee, from sudden flashes of sunlight in trees or movement in the underbrush, at shadows falling across his path, at blowing paper—all an atavistic reaction to the days when wild cats lurked in tree forks ready to spring on unwary horseflesh passing beneath.

Always, somewhere below surface consciousness in a domestic animal, there lies half-buried all the old, primitive instincts for survival. Normally, man is able to keep these instincts buried, and he does this by continuing the domestication process in each successive generation of animal he breeds.

He domesticates by handling, by touching, by close association, by giving affection, and by providing food. Thus, he "gentles" a silly, skittish colt into trusting him, and he establishes a trust relationship with a litter of young puppies or kittens by playing with them and petting them and feeding them—all positive things to an animal's young brain.

But if he neglects the domesticating process with young animals for too long, he may have lost them forever.

Just this week, a friend of ours took into her home a litter of three purebred Siamese kittens who were almost lost as domestic animals. Their owner was unable to keep them, sell them or otherwise dispose of them, and was heading for the Pound when she intervened.

These kittens were unfortunate enough to be born at a time when the woman of the household had to leave on an extended trip. The man worked long hours. So mama cat and her babies were consigned to a bathroom, where they lived, pretty much on their own, for nine weeks. Their only brief contact with man was when they were given a pan of food.

At eight weeks of age, the three kittens were all-but-unapproachable. They hissed, spat, fluffed out their fur and bit when a hand reached out for them. They reacted, instinctively, the way a den of baby bobcats or mountain lions of the same age would react when approached by any stranger or enemy.

Because they were still young and malleable, they were not yet untamable. A few days of intensified human contact, including a great deal of holding, petting and feeding, turned them from baby wild beasts into typical, playful, bold Siamese kittens. They stopped growling and hissing when approached and learned to purr. They stopped hiding in dark corners and began climbing over the furniture with newly-found confidence. They were, in short, rescued from an instinctive behavior pattern that made them unfit to live with men, to their modern, domesticated heredity.

There is a good lesson to be learned from the above true story, and it should be learned by everyone who ever takes it upon himself to raise any baby animals.

It is not enough to lock a mother dog and her puppies, a mother cat and her kittens, or any family of domestic animals into a barn or shed or back room and leave them to "just grow."

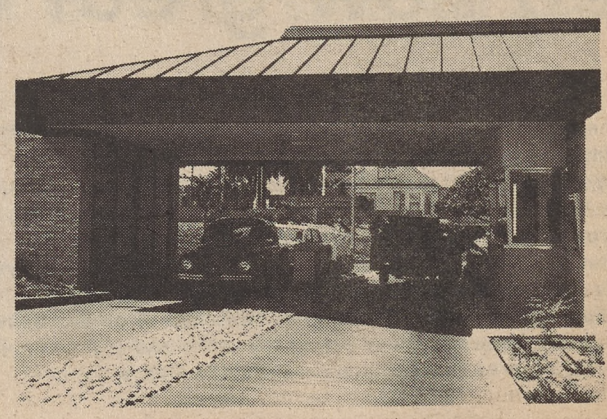

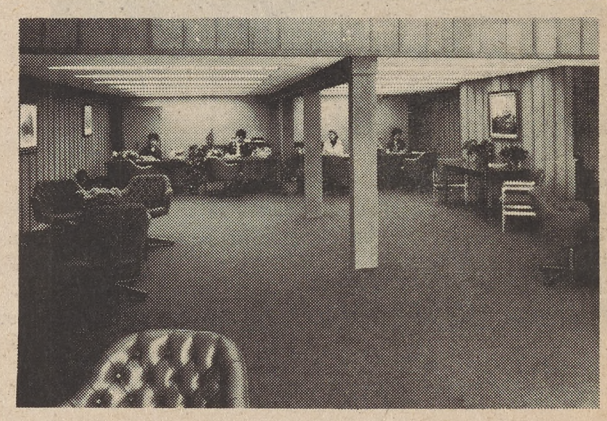

It has been conclusively proven in studies made with numerous litters of young puppies, that unless they are "socialized" by the age of 16 weeks—at the outside—they are forever useless to man. The revert back to instinctive behavior patterns and, once past that 16-week mark, cannot be brought back into the fold.

All young animals must have human affection from a very early age if they are to grow up domesticated. With puppies and kittens, humans should be familiar parts of their lives from the time their eyes open. They must be petted and played with and talked to as soon as their young brains can absorb messages, so that they develop trust and affection for their human friends.

When young animals learn, practically from birth, that humans are dispensers of food, petting, warmth and affection, they never display the wildness shown by that litter of kittens. Domestication—tameness—is implanted firmly into their behavior and wildness never has a chance to take over.

Branson replies to Nader report on water policies

A broadside blast against California's State and Regional Water Quality Control Boards by a Ralph Nader task force drew a firm rebuttal from Supervisor Willard Branson this week.

Branson, chairman of the Central Coast Regional Water Quality Control Board, flatly denied the Nader report's assertion that the board's policies are ineffective and actually condone water pollution by municipalities and large corporations.

"I feel it is very unfortunate that one of the members of the Nader team didn't contact our board," Branson said. "In the last 14 months our regional board has issued about 20 cease-and-desist orders, including everything from a building ban on the cities of Seaside and Pacific Grove to the first lawsuit in the State under the Porter-Cologne Act, against Fort Ord.

"And while we didn't levy any fines, I think the most salutary thing about the orders was the fact that in four months, the cities of Seaside, Monterey and Pacific Grove came out with a tri-city report involving the consolidation of their facilities as the first phase towards water reclamation. I consider this getting the job done."

During the same period of time, Branson said, the regional board has set 64 discharge requirements "with absolutely no discrimination," ranging from municipalities to Getty Oil Co., Texaco, Kaiser Refractories and large cattle operations, including Fat City.

He said that the regional board presently has 32 specific discharge requirement cases under consideration, and that it is "logical to assume that at least some will result in cease and desist orders."

Branson sharply disagreed with the report's contention that "by using the timetable cease-and-desist order, the board is giving away its right to seek a fine against a polluter." (The Porter-Cologne Act authorizes a $6000-a-day fine against polluters.)

The report continues: "It is not surprising that the boards do not think twice about bargaining away their biggest club. They do not intend to fine anyone anyway. When there are hundreds of long-term violators damaging the water, seemingly unaffected by the existence of the boards, it is clear that other remedies have been highly ineffective."

Said Branson: "If you issue a cease and desist order on a municipality that is bankrupt and can't get a bond issue through, what good is a $6000-a-day fine?

"What we want are results, so we use the carrot approach. We tell the municipality that if they will do certain things, then they will qualify for 80 percent funding.

"And we're not just trying to take remedial action, we're trying to innovate and look ahead. We have an interim basin plan that cuts across every line possible.

"Right now I'm checking into the calcium situation in Monterey Bay. There are no requirements about calcium deposits yet, and scientists tell me not to be terribly worried right now, but I'm working on it, and I think we'll come up with someting."

The Nader report was also highly critical of what it said were repeated instances of blatant conflict-of-interest situations on various boards.

While Branson said he couldn't speak for other boards, he knows of no conflict of interest on the CCRWOCB.

In addition to Branson, a Prudential insurance agent who serves on the board because he is a County supervisor, the local board consists of the following members:

James Glaser, jr., real estate salesman for Del Monte Properties; Louis Nelson, former Santa Cruz County supervisor and owner of a rock and gravel plant; Floyd Gregory, San Ardo cattle rancher; Dr. Alfred Ebeling, a Ph.-D. in ichthyology, a professor at U.C. Santa Barbara; Dr. Harold Cota, a Ph.D. in mechanical engineering with a speciality in air pollution, a professor at U.C.S.B.; Eugene Brendlin, manager of the Cal Poly Foundation; and Norman Caldwell, director of the Santa Barbara County Department of Public Works.

Branson said he would be happy to invite the Nader team to check the regional board's records "because I know we're being effective."

Trail & Saddle Club Horse Show postponed

The big annual Horse Show sponsored by the Carmel Valley Trail & Saddle Club has been postponed for one week.

Originally scheduled for the weekend of September 4-5, it will instead be held on September 11-12.

The postponement was made following the advice of local veterinarians, who are in the midst of vaccinating every horse in the Valley, as part of the state-wide mandatory vaccination program.

They started this week at the lower valley and are working their way up the valley. Because of the number of horses involved, the vaccination cannot be completed in time to permit the horse show to be held on the originally scheduled dates. After vaccination, horses must remain on the premises for 14 days.

Horse show officials said this week that the entire program will be staged as planned, except one week later.

Club officials added that everyone planning to enter the show must have their horses vaccinated by Aug. 27 so that the 14-day quarantine period will have expired before the show dates.

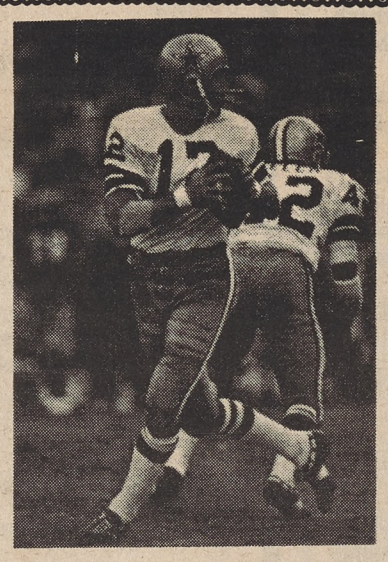

CLARA THE MAID (portrayed by Florence Larsen) seems non-plussed at the amorous advances of Simon Bliss (Terrence Wadsworth) toward flapper Jackie Coryton (Barbara Conklin) in this scene from the Noel Coward comedy "Hay Fever," a production of the Community Theatre of the Monterey Peninsula now playing at the Circle Theatre in Carmel. For reservations or ticket information, call 624-2669. (Photo by Mr. Dap.)

Championship swimming in Valley this weekend

For the first time since 1965, an AAU competitive synchronized swimming championship meet will be held at the Carmel Valley Community Pool this weekend when the Cypress Swim Club hosts the 1971 National AAU Region XIII Age Group Championships.

Entries so far have been received from the Santa Clara Aquamaids, the California Coralettes, the Walnut Creek Aquanuts, and the Cypress Swim Club, all from the Pacific AAU, but entries are expected from the Southern Pacific AAU, and may be received from Central California, Pacific Southwest, Southern, and Southern Nevada associations as well, according to AAU Region XIII Age Group Captain Del Neel, manager of the Cypress Swim Club.

To qualify for this meet though, a swimmer must have placed in the top three in her age group in her local association.

Figures competition, in which each competitor is required to execute three compulsory and two optional figures for the panel of judges, is scheduled for 4:00 p.m. Saturday afternoon. The swimmer's score in this event is added to her score in the routine competition which will begin at 9:00 Sunday morning.

Both Neel and Donn Squire, coach of the Cypress Swim Club, advise that the figures competition, being of a repetitive nature, is tedious for all but the most dedicated devotees of the sport, and recommend that spectators will enjoy more the routine competition scheduled for Sunday, although they may want to take a brief look at the Saturday afternoon competition.

Sunday's schedule is as follows: Solo Competition in the 10-and-under age group category beginning at 9:00 a.m., followed by Solos in the 11-12, 13-14, and 15-17 age groups; then Duet Competition in 10-and-under and 11-12 age groups. After a lunch break, competition will resume with the 13-14 age group duets followed by the 15-17 age group. The concluding event will be the Team Competition in each of the above age group categories. A team may consist of from four to eight members, and this is the most popular event for spectators.

Only two Cypress members are entered thus far, Kathryn Blevens and Gerri Brandly, in the 13-14 Duet Competition.

No admission fee will be charged and refreshments, including lunch, will be available at nominal prices.

Baroque, Renaissance music on tap Sunday at Forest Theater

BY FRANK H. RILEY, MANAGER SUNSET CENTER

THE ANNUAL pipe band concert Sunday was its usual success. This year the performance was by the Prince Charles Pipe Band of San Francisco and all 508 who saw the performance can readily understand why they continue to win prizes and awards.

NEXT SUNDAY at Forest for the City-sponsored free concert at 2 p.m., we welcome back old friends and great performers. Music by the Beyer Trio, augmented by Fred Schaad, pianist and David Selley, oboist, will accompany dances performed by Angene Feves and Charles Perrier. Miss Feves has researched many of the dances and reconstructed them from antique manuscripts. Of particular interest in the "Grand Pas de Deux" from the "Accursed Kiss," an entertainment of 1850. The musical ensemble will also play sonatas by Handel.

The entire program is divided in two parts—the first, Music of the Renaissance; the second, Music of the Baroque. A most enjoyable afternoon is assured. The public is welcome and there is no charge. Forest Theater is on Mountain View just a short walk up from Ocean Avenue.

THE PROGRAMS for the ten Sunday afternoon programs each year are selected under the guidance of the cultural commission and careful note is taken of content, quality, and the like to assure a well-balanced series.

I wonder if you have ever stopped to think, though, that many of the shows, concerts and other attractions that perform at Sunset Center Theater, and to a lesser extent at Forest Theater, are independent ventures. Their format, content, and over-all management policies are not subject to control by Sunset or by the city.

Aside from legal restrictions which forbid discriminatory booking policies in a public facility, we feel rather pleased with the wide variety of entertainment that thus becomes available to Carmel residents. From Boy Scout ceremonials to "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown"—from classical Hidden Valley Music Seminars concerts to plays such as "The Cage,"—the programs of the symphony and the various music societies; the travel shows, surfing movies, ecology films—all are independently managed and produced. No one could possibly be interested in them all, but surely there is something for every taste sooner or later.

Most commercial announcements would also include something about "every pocketbook." Bob Evans, jr., whose Studio Theatre is currently producing "Charlie Brown" at the Forest has also taken this aspect into account. As an experiment in determining relationships of admission prices to audience size, he is for this week only setting a price scale of $1 for those under 16 and $2 for others. The response will be noted for future guidance. We will be interested in observing what comes of Mr. Evans' experiment; and so, we would presume, will other prospective producers who might be considering renting the Forest Theater.

And speaking of the Forest Theater...

Don't forget the public hearing at the City Hall on Monday, Aug. 30 at 7:30 p.m. The commission is waiting for your constructive ideas.

Renaissance music, dance Sunday at Forest Theater

The Forest Theater afternoon program this Sunday will include some very unusual numbers presented in a joint concert by the Beyer String Trio joined by dancers Angene Feves and Charles Perrier.

All of the artists are familiar to Carmel audiences. Both the trio and the dancers have appeared at the Forest in past years. Miss Feves will also be remembered for her "Faery Queen" in the 1969 Carmel Bach Festival.

Angene Feves had been doing extensive research in dances of anituqity—recreating them in authentic versions from manuscripts dating from 1581, 1589, and for the period from 1600 to 1700. Sunday's program will include music of the period of the 17th century by the Beyer trio to accompany dances developed from this research.

The special culmination of the program will be a Grand Pas de Deux in the style of 1850 which was first performed at the Great Dickens Fair of 1970 and was acclaimed as the hilarious highlight of the Fair.

Mr. Perrier, who appears with Miss Feves, is principal dancer with the Marin Civic Ballet, soloist with the San Francisco Opera ballet, and appears regularly with Consortium Antiquum and has lectured on various aspects of the dance.

DANCERS ANGENE FEVES (r.) and Charles Perrier perform a re-creation of Renaissance dances this Sunday on stage at Carmel's Forest Theater. They will accompany the Beyer String Trio in a joint concert for the enjoyment of residents and visitors free of charge.

Local equestrians bow to Foxfield

For five days, 150 riders from the Monterey Peninsula, the Bay Area and Foxfield Riding Academy in Los Angeles competed for honors in the 26th annual Pebble Beach Summer Horse Show.

Foxfield, a nationally known riding academy, edged out the local competition again this year.

For the Northern Californians, who have primarily trained with Pebble Beach Equestrian Center Director Richard Collins and his staff, it was a competition firmly grounded in good horsemanship and good sportsmanship.

The tension was high as the Pebble Beach equestrians faced off against the 50 finely honed Foxfield riders. Pebble Beach riders made a good showing, even though four of their most seasoned riders were missing the action.

Forced to the sidelines was Mimi Murray of Monterey, who broke her collarbone last week when both she and her horse took a fall while jumping a ditch. Jo Ferguson of Carmel was not able to compete.

The other missing Pebble Beach equestrian stars are out of the Country. Kevin Strathmeyer of Carmel Valley is in Canada as the Western U.S. Pony Club representative for the International Pony Club rallies being staged throughout that country, and Tena Dunaway of Pebble Beach has been traveling in Europe with her mother, Mrs. Jane Brown Dunaway.

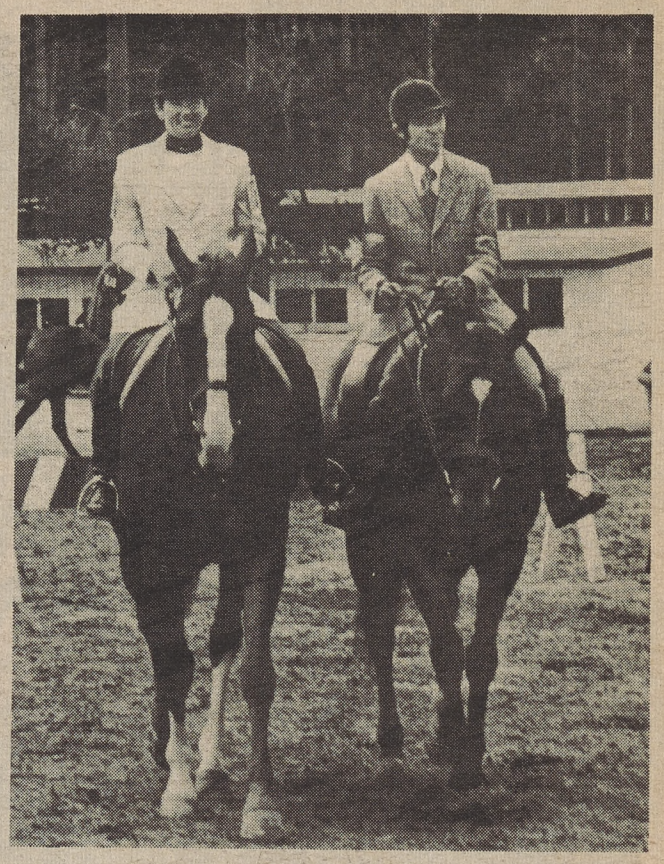

For Pebble Beach equestrian enthusiasts, the Horse Show was only the first of three events to be held this month at the Equestrian Center.

This weekend (Aug. 28-29) will feature the annual Dressage Championship. Dressage, which tests the schooling of a horse and the ability of his rider to command him, is the most precise of all equestrian competitions.

Labor Day weekend, Sept. 3-5, the Three Day Trials and Western American Cup will be held. The Trials, which are a nationally sanctioned event, begins with Dressage Sept. 3, followed by the nine-mile cross country event, which includes three miles of jumps on Sept. 4, and concludes with stadium jumping Sunday, Sept. 5.

Because a rider uses the same horse all three days, this event is considered the most taxing measure of a horse's stamina and well-rounded ability.

There is no admission charge for any of these events, beyond the gate fee to the 17 Mile Drive.

SANDY (MRS. WILLIAM) HUDSON of Pebble Beach warms her horse "The Orphan" up in the paddock with fellow competitor Norman Ellis of Carmel Valley riding "Meandros." Ellis placed 1st in the Regular Working Hunters division and Mrs. Hudson placed 2nd. William C. Brooks photo.

Sponsor tickets sold out for '72 U.S. Open

All 6,500 sponsor tickets for the 1972 U.S. Open Championship at Pebble Beach have been sold out, Open manager Nancy Jupp announced Wednesday.

The $50 Sponsor tickets entitle holders to admission for practice and competition rounds, a playoff round (if needed), guaranteed parking at preferential locations, a complimentary souvenir program, and a listing by name as a sponsor in the program.

The sponsor's ticket also grants the bearer admission to Open headquarters at the Del Monte Lodge, the Club XIX pavilion by the 18th green, and entrance to the Beach and Tennis Club overlooking the 17th green at Pebble Beach.

Only sponsors, Open officials, players, and members of the press will have access to the clubhouse headquarters within the Lodge.

General Admission (grounds only) Season Tickets will go on sale at $31.50 approximately Sept. 1. These tickets entitle holders to three practice days, four tournament days, and a play-off (if any). Free parking and a souvenir program are included.

THE TOWN CRIER

Rosanna Claire Smith of Carmel Valley has been named to the Dean's Honor List at Chico State College. She is one of 371 students during the spring semester who earned a grade point average of 3.5 or better out of a possible 4.0, and who had completed at least 24 units at Chico State.

Sherlie Stoddard, a former Carmel Valley newspaperwoman, reports that she has resigned the post of public information officer at Monterey Peninsula College.

Miss Stoddard, an 11-year employee of the college, said she was leaving to "free-lance in writing, editing, copyreading, proofreading, manuscript-doctoring, publicity -- wherever my experience leads me." Her last day at MPC will be August 31.

The California Division of Forestry advises that they are in no way officially connected with the sales promotion of circus tickets on the Monterey Peninsula presently under way.

Emery Sloat, Deputy State Forester for the California Division of Forestry's Central Coast District in Monterey, said that a small group of employees known as the California Division of Forestry Employees Association have contracted to sponsor a circus in this area in September.

The solicitors for the production company are not Forestry employees or members of the Employees Association, but have allegedly given the impression that they represent the California Division of Forestry.

The Employees Association, Sloat added, is a bonafide members' group legitimately lending their name to this enterprise, but he emphasized that the California Division of Forestry, as a state agency, is in no way officially connected with the circus or the Employees Association.

There are many pleasant surprises in Carmel Valley

BY PAT GRIFFITH

SERENDIPITY, by definition, is "the facility of making happy and unexpected discoveries by accident."

Serendipity is visiting in Carmel Valley . . . entering a bookstore and leaving with a rare piece of Oriental art . . . dropping by a hardware store and winding up with a stunning pottery vase . . . attending a delightful movie theater only to become entranced with an art exhibit.

It happens all the time, because there's much more to Carmel Valley than the sweeping vista of hills and fields one glimpses from the road. All that's needed is knowing where to look.

There are two areas especially suited for casual browsing. Closest to Carmel and Highway 1 is the Valley Hills Shopping Center, directly opposite Quail Lodge and the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

This is the home of the Thunderbird, the bookstore that is a community institution. Books the Thunderbird has, paperback and hardbound, with an emphasis on contemporary affairs, ecology, travel, children's books and art.

But the Thunderbird is also a gallery, at present featuring charcoal and pastels by Gilbert Adam Schoenbrod and photographs by Joanna Rozelle. It is also a restaurant, serving an assortment of sandwiches at noontime and roast beef for dinner.

As if this weren't sufficient, the Thunderbird has also become a center for Oriental art and antiques under the knowledgable guidance of owners John and Mae Waldroup, who lived in the Far East for many years.

ACROSS THE PARKING LOT from the Thunderbird is the Valley Hills Gallery, another unique Valley institution. Here four artists, Bernice Huber, Lucile Hubert, Stan Spohn and Jean Hofsas, exhibit a variety of watercolors, oils, pen and ink drawings and prints that are pleasing to the pocketbook as well as the eye.

This is the favorite looking-spot for military families who want to purchase a permanent reminder of their stay on the Monterey Peninsula, as well as countless residents who enjoy the opportunity to meet one or more of the artists in person at the gallery. Hours are 10 to 5 daily except Tuesday.

Right in the same building is the Fred E. Brooks Gallery, which this month is featuring the work of Jerry Lebeck.

Also at home in the Valley Hills center is the recently opened Gallery Graphics, next door to the Carmel Valley Art and Framing shop. Here one will find monographs by Elaine Vickery and handsome prints by Henry Evans represented along with the work of other graphic artists.

And finally, one of the Valley's finest craftsmen, Thomas R. Broadbent, has his "atelier" in a smaller building across from Gallery Grahpics.

Broadbent is a master wood carver, but that label doesn't begin to do justice to the exquisite reproductions and works of art that are fashioned at his bench.

Several other artists and craftsmen are loosely grouped in the Village area.

IN THE HEART OF THE VILLAGE, almost obscured by a magnificent white oak, is the Carmel Valley Gallery operated by Marian Wilson. Highly selective in what she displays, Mrs. Wilson invariably has one or two paintings of famed Western artist Jack Swanson of Cachagua Valley.

Several other "name" artists are currently represented here too. Watercolorist James Kramer has several stunning scenes of Gold Rush and mining towns on display. Emily Tihenko is represented by unusual driftwood and stone carvings and several paintings.

Some of the best work is the smallest -- delightful miniatures of scenes in Spain by Donald Teague, and the ever-popular pen and ink animals that are Andrew Kozak's trademark.

The artistic population at Bernadelli Square is a shifting one, and a repeat visitor is certain of finding at least a few surprises. This week -- but not necessarily next week -- there are only two locations occupied, both upstairs in the front of the building.

One is the new Tyson Gallery, where wood sculptures by Mia Fonssagrives dominate the walls. Next door is the Quacker Barrel leather shop, where the visitor can watch leather being hand-tooled into belts, bookcovers and hair clips.

DELFINO PLACE is the third location for arts and crafts in the Village. Here teacher and prolific painter Virginia Ford presides over an attractive, sunlit gallery above the Village Art Center. During the winter months, Mrs. Ford features a different show each month, in addition to her own work.

Across the street is Rudi Marzi's Monterey Jade pottery workshop and showroom. This is the distinctive blue-green pottery displayed in shops in Carmel.

Visitors are always welcome to watch Rudi and his fellow potters at work. The shop offers a table of "seconds" at reduced prices in addition to a wide variety of one-of-a-kind pieces.

Just about to open in this area is the Brattin Gallery, which will be at the rear of the Brattin Nursery on Pilot Road, across from Delfino Place. Owner Edith Brattin, a horticulturist since childhood, will have true-to-life paintings of flowers and plants here.

WHERE ARE THE OTHER SURPRISES? Where's that special pottery you come across when you want to buy nails or kerosene for your lantern?

That's at the Village House hardware store, in the shopping center behind Will's Fargo. The pottery is the work of the very talented Beau Kvenild and is displayed in a side room, past the tubs of nails.

And the movie theater that's an art gallery?

None other than the Tantamount, a very special spot in the Valley, where classic old-time movies are shown on Friday and Saturday evenings only.

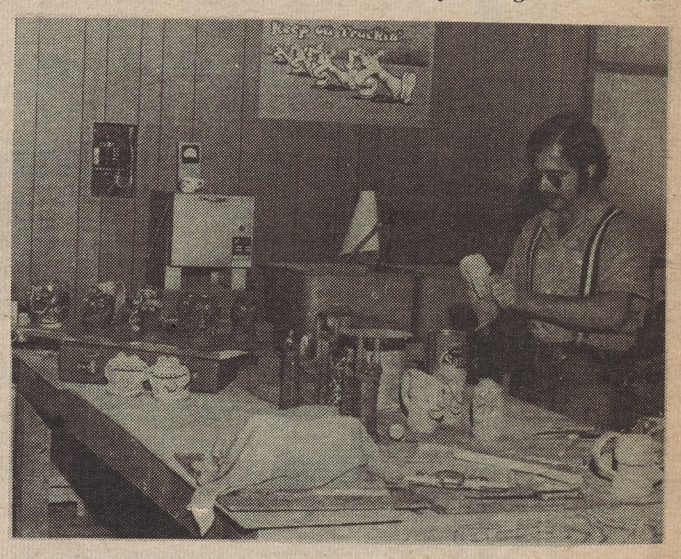

The theater itself, on Middle Canyon Road, is a triumph of redwood set amid giant gnarled oaks. Everything about it speaks of great care and comfort, so naturally enough there is always an intermission with coffee on the house served in demi tasse cups of white china.

This is the delighful moment when many people discover the Green Room gallery for the first time, scene of many of the Valley's most outstanding exhibits. This gallery is also open in the afternoons when the theater is closed.

WORKING in leather are Joe and Carol Ortman, who are located in Bernadelli Square in the Village.

Photos by George T.C. Smith

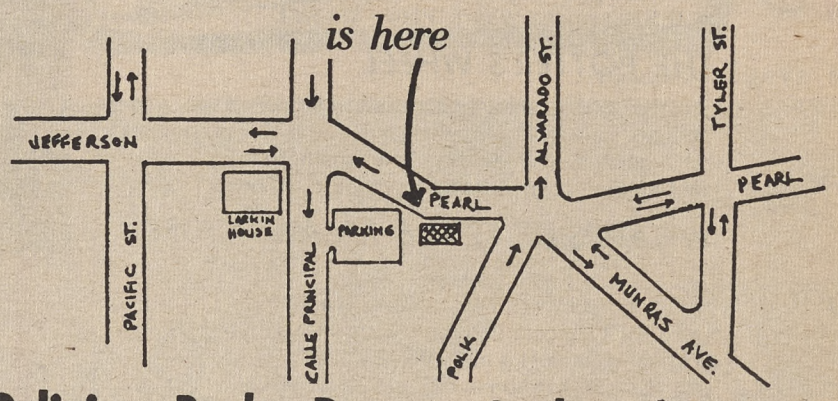

JEFFREY O. LACH has recently begun making ceramics in a studio in the Village Art Center on Delfino Place.

WOODWORKING at Thomas R. Broadbents Atalier in Valley Hills Shopping Center. A friend, Mrs. Claire Pentony, is getting ready to shape a wood block. Assisting her are Julie Yurkovich, Carissa Chappellet and Alexa Chappellet, and peeking from behind her mother is Heather Pentony.
